Glades voters to test new machines?

Glades voters in one or more precincts may be taking part in an experiment during the upcoming primary and general elections in the fall by testing a new type of computer-based voting machines.

Palm Beach County Supervisor of Elections Jackie Winchester said there is a "fair chance" the punch card voting machines will be used in

'It wouldn't be fair if we didn't use them in one precinct'

-- Winchester

"about 40 precincts" in the county and one or more Glades precincts would probably be among those testing the new machines.

Mrs. Winchester said last week the increase in the number of registered voters in the county will necessitate the purchase of additional voting equipment before the 1976 Primary and General Election.

"The Board of County Commissioners of Palm Beach County," she said, "is currently exploring the possibility of converting to one of the new computer-based voting systems in lieu of purchasing additional lever machines."

Mrs. Winchester said the county has received proposals from vendors of four of the five machines certified by the state for use in Florida, polling places and these four will be displayed from 9 to 11:30 a.m. today.

She said the machines will be demonstrated to interested persons in the county commission chambers at the Palm Beach County Courthouse at 310 Datura St. in West Palm Beach.

Mrs. Winchester said the new machines fold up to about the size of suitcases. Generally, the four types being displayed incorporate a ballot with holes punched next to the names of the candidates.

She said the voter uses either a pencil or a metal stylus to mark or punch a hole in his card, being held under the ballot, depending on the type of machine.

The cards, at the end of the election day, are then transported to the computer, where they are fed into the date processing equipment for a tally.

"If the county commission decides to try out the computer-based voting equipment," Mrs. Winchester said, "we'll probably use them in about 40 representative precincts and it wouldn't be a fair test if we didn't use them in at least one Glades precinct."

She said there are obviously both advantages and disadvantages in the computer system and that the "perfect system" hasn't been presented yet.

The advantages are primarily that the Supervisor of Elections office would have a permanent record, not just of the votes cast in an individual precinct but by each voter, and the votes could be re-counted at any time after the election in case of a dispute.

Also, the cards presumably would mean the official tally of the vote could be completed much faster than a count of the lever machines now being used.

"I'm not entirely satisfied on this, though," Mrs. Winchester said, recalling the Broward County election two years ago in which the final vote, using one of the four systems, wasn't tallied until after 2:30 a.m. the following day. "That wouldn't do," she said.

But even if the official vote count were completed much sooner than is now possible, reporting of the elections would be much slower because no tallies would be available until the official counting was completed by the computer.

Now, for instance, although the votes may be in the Glades on any county-wide issue aren't officially counted until the tally sheets are transported to the Supervisor's office in West Palm Beach, unofficial counts have already been tallied in, hours earlier.

And while Mrs. Winchester didn't mention it, there is also the possibility of completely losing the cards on transit to the data processing center if, for instance, a poll worker who has already worked a 12-14 hour day were to be involved in an accident while transporting the cards to West Palm Beach on SR80.

Another problem, especially in the Glades, could be the city elections. The cards punched in the Belle Glade election, for instance, would have to be transported to West Palm Beach to be counted.

The count is now completed within an hour after the polls close in city elections. Unless Mrs. Winchester agreed to keep personnel on overtime pay the night of the election, the results might not be known until relatively late the following day.

Mrs. Winchester said it would be possible for individual cities, should the county decide to go to the computer-based operation, to buy and maintain their own lever machines, "but one problem with that is that they would have to have personnel qualified to set up, maintain, and repair the machines."

The lack of a need for these qualified personnel is one of the advantages of the computer-based equipment, Mrs. Winchester said, along with the lower cost of each polling machine and its smaller size which reduces the cost of and problems of transporting and storing the machines.

One dead, one injured

A Lake Worth insurance salesman died in the ruins of his car Monday afternoon after slamming head-on into a tractor-trailer rig heading east out of Belle Glade on SR80 about two miles west of 20 Mile Bend. Dead was Richard Stout Higgins, 58, of Lake Worth. The trucker, Lloyd K. Marchant, 59, of West Palm Beach, was first carried to Glades General Hospital and then flown by the sheriff's helicopter to St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach.

Florida Highway Patrol Troopers Paul May and Gary Bradshaw said Higgins crossed into the eastbound lane in the path of Marchant's truck. The impact slammed Higgins' car backward about 45 feet, crushing the front end of the car and demolishing the cab of the truck, which jackknifed across the highway, backing traffic up for more than a mile to the west. Belle Glade Fire Department rescue squad members Larry Lamb and Warren Street were called to the scene to extricate Higgins' body from the wreckage with a Hurst tool.

Glades juries may be here soon

While County Judge Don T. Adams will begin hearing juvenile cases today, the machinery has been set in motion which could bring all jury trials originating in the Glades to court in the Glades.

State Representative Tom Lewis said Friday he will be pre-filing a bill this week which would allow counties throughout the state to set up two or more jury districts within the county.

Lewis said he drew up the bill as a result of a presentation by Judge Adams and Glades area Assistant State's Attorney Michael Miller during a legislative delegation hearing in Belle Glade on Jan. 30.

Adams and Miller requested the delegation's help in setting up a system which would allow the jury trials to be held in Adams' court, saving a trip to West Palm Beach for the defendants, any police officers involved and the members of the jury.

Under the present system, jurors are selected from a pool of names representing voters living throughout the county. Jurors who live in the Glades must travel to West Palm Beach to serve.

Adams said this week there have been no jury trials in the Glades, except for one coroner's jury which met in December to determine the cause of death of an inmate being housed in the Belle Glade City Jail.

The reason for this, Adams explained, is because the clerk of the circuit court has opposed forming juries for the Glades area as long as the jurors would be selected from a county-wide venue.

Adams said he has been researching the matter and has found that two other counties having the same type of problem as Palm Beach County, have arrived at their own partial solutions.

He said Volusia County has court held in two locations and jury trials are held in only two of the three. Again, as required by state law, the jurors are chosen from a county-wide pool.

Brevard County, which is 70 miles long, holds court in three locations. Adams said, although jury trials are held in only two of the three. Again, as required by state law, the jurors are chosen from a county-wide venue.

"This law is just what we need," Adams said Tuesday, "and it would really help other counties, like Volusia and Brevard, also."

The plan would permit Palm Beach County to be divided into four judicial districts, with the dividing line being possibly drawn north and south at 20 Mile Bend. All the jurors east of the line would serve in courts in West Palm Beach, and all the jurors west of the line would serve in Adams' court.

The local judge said he has one case pending in which Belle Glade attorney Tom Montgomery has asked for a jury trial in the Glades Office Building or that the county pay transportation expenses for the defendant and witnesses.

The judge said Montgomery has also made verbal motions in two other cases to the judge's effect.

Adams said the separate jury districts Lewis' bill would allow would permit him to give full judicial service to people in the Glades without the necessity for them to travel to the coast. He said this has been his aim for some time now.

"It's coming," he said of jury service. "I think we're on the way."

Australians visit Glades

A group of 40 Australian sugar cane growers representing 32 miles and 28,000 acres of sugar land on the Down Under continent toured the Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative of Florida mill Friday.

The group was on an unofficial visit to the Glades sugar-producing area. In two successive nights the Australians stayed over at the Holiday Inn in Belle Glade and the Claret Inn in Clewiston.

Business taxes due: David Reid

Palm Beach County Property Appraiser David Reid said Tuesday that today is the deadline for businesses to file returns listing all their business assets such as furniture, fixtures, machinery, equipment, supplies and inventory.

The list of assets includes all livestock according to Reid, as well as rental property such as motels, hotels and apartments.

Homeowners aren't required to file a return on household items unless they're being used as rental properties.

Reid said state law sets penalties for filing after April 1 and for failure to file. For late filers, there is a penalty of 5 per cent per month, not to exceed 25 per cent. For failure to file, there is a 25 per cent penalty the first year, 50 per cent the second year and 75 per cent the third year.

He said assistance could be obtained at the tangible personal property department of his office by calling 837-2896 or 839-2894. He also has a branch office in the Glades Office Building in the Glades which can be reached by calling 966-5511.

Arts and crafts festival Saturday

The Glades Central and Pahokee High School Bands will both take part Saturday in the Glades Arts and Crafts Festival, which will begin at 10 a.m. at the Municipal Civic Center on 725 N.W. Fourth St.

The festival, sponsored by the Farm Bureau Women for the benefit of the Palm Beach Community Mental Health Center-Glades Branch will be opened with music by the Pahokee band.

Glades Steering Committee Chairman Gene Cross said there will be entertainment for children and teenagers and a flea market for adults.

Cactus Willie, the clown, will be on hand to greet the children, who will also have a fishing pond and apples and popcorn for their benefit.

Oil paintings, water colors and copper work will be on display inside the civic center building.

Fresh vegetables, baked items, homemade bonnets and aprons, ceramics, plants and crafts of all types will be offered for sale outside the building.

The local branch of the Mental Health Center and the persons or organizations who sponsor the items will profit or benefit. The customary items of the Lions Club are expected to be sold—brooms, light bulbs and other household items. The Everglades Memorial

Arts and Crafts

Hospital auxiliary has plans to sell their gift items and baked goods. The Busy Bee Club of Fremd Village, a group of senior citizens, will sing and sell their handicraft. Old photographs of the Glades by Vance Denton will be exhibited.

Boiled corn and sloppy joes will be available about noon for those with an appetite to satisfy and the Glades Central Band will be providing music at the time. A rock band will entertain the teenagers during the day.

Mrs. Cross said a quarter of a beef will be sold also. Tickets for the beef will be on sale for a dollar donation each, with the winning ticket getting the whole quarter.

For those who need information, there will be a Social Security booth with someone to man it the entire day.

"This is a day planned for all ages and all tastes," Mrs. Cross said. "Be sure to come and do your part for mental health in the Glades."

Glades Central High School will hold the Second Annual Educational Fair over a three-day period spanning April 12-14, culminating in an open house featuring entertainment and exhibits and shows throughout the school.

The fair, according to career specialist Lisa Walker, has the most comprehensive participation of any yearly school event. Every department will participate, either with student project displays, films or actual presentations.

Education Fair plans made

Miss Wells to be wed

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arthur Wells Jr. of 201 S.E. Sixth St. North announced this week the engagement of their daughter, Candace Ruth Wells, to John Lawrence Miller of Cape Coral, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Glenn Miller of Cape Coral.

The bride-elect is a former resident of Belle Glade. She is a 1973 graduate of Glades Central High School and a 1974 graduate of Arthur's Beauty College in Fort Myers. She was also a member of the Order of the Rainbow, Assembly One in Belle Glade and a member of the First Baptist Church of Belle Glade.

The groom-elect is formerly of Atwater, Ohio where he was a 1968 graduate of Atwater High School. He attended Kent State University, served in the U.S. Air Force in 1969-73, was a member of the Strategic Air Command and a veteran of the Vietnam War. He is now an inactive member of the Air Force Reserve and a member of the First Baptist Church of Atwater.

The wedding date has not been arranged at this time.

Participation ranges from music on the patio by the school band, a slide show prepared by the physical education department, a fashion show presented by the homemaking department and a biennial "Film titled, "Williamsburg: The Story of a Patriot," shown by the Audio-Visual Club.

static displays such as a complete French meal with menu in French by the French Club.

One significant change in this year's fair, according to Mrs. Walker, is that there won't necessarily be any prizes given in any particular category if the judges feel none of the entries deserve a prize.

"Awards will be given only if entries exist which merit them," Mrs. Walker said. "Three levels of awards are planned: Award of Excellence, Award of Merit, and Honorable Mention. In the event that a category has no project deemed worthy of awards by the judging committee, they may be withheld."

The open house will be in at 7 p.m. April 14 with an opening program in the school gymnasium. Included in the program will be the presentation of awards, selections by the OCBS Band and Chorus, and remarks by Principal Ellis Greer and School Superintendent Joseph Carroll.

Those attending will then disperse to wherever the exhibits and presentations are being made throughout the school.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Lirpa Loof was in Glades first

It may have been the influence of last week's column on what really transpired at the duel between Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr but I was informed over the weekend of an astounding discovery.

Seems a group of archeologists at the University of Florida intend to announce in the near future that a tablet of runes discovered a couple of years ago at Doctor's Inlet indicate an obscure Viking named Lirpa Loof explored Florida 1,000 years ago and visited what may have been the future sites of South Bay and Belle Glade.

Lirpa is referred to several times in Norse writings. He was an uncle of Eric the Red on Eric's mother's side of the family and was generally called Lirpa the Six-Toed because his one claim to fame until the year 976 A.D. was that he had two big and four small toes on his left foot.

Lirpa's longest voyage was on a Viking raid the Mediterranean Sea in 976, along with a fleet of about 32 other craft, when he became separated during a storm off the coast of Africa.

This wasn't the first time the canny Viking had been separated, though, and he had always turned up like a bad penny in the past so everybody expected him to show up again. In the meantime, he became known as Lirpa the Lost.

The tale Lirpa told when he did resurface was so ridiculous (until it was confirmed only recently on the Doctor's Inlet Runes) the other Norsemen promptly dubbed him Lirpa the Liar and turned him out to a Viking pasture, where he grazed happily until he had his brains bashed out in a duel with a billygoat for the favor of a pretty Nanny.

The runes discovered recently are in the form of a fragment of Lirpa's logbook, Enterprise, which boldly sailed where no Norseman had ever gone before, finding and promptly losing an entire New World.

The first date isn't listed and only part of the entry is available today. It deals with barely escaping an earthquake and an unnamed island where the natives wore huge hats they called sombreroes and tanned their intestines with a fiery hot ditch called chile and peppers, with which they tried to poison the Scandinavians.

February 27, 976 - Ran west today until we came on a land lined with white, sandy beaches, coming to a mouth of a river. The natives we talked to later in the day, using the sign language, called the river the Kulushatchy. The ship had plenty of room between the banks and there was enough water we ran the ship upstream on an exploring expedition, where we found the natives.

The natives, who called themselves Injuna, were fishing for catfish and bluegills with cane poles while lying on the bank in something they called hammocks. Some of them were playfully wrestling with weird looking creatures they called alligators.

I told them who I was and said I'd come to discover them but they weren't buying that. They said they were waiting for some character they called Christopher and they weren't about to be discovered till then.

That didn't make much sense but when they asked me if I had any fixin' with peppercorns and anchovies and maybe a little Dago Red, I decided we better not stick around too long cause whatever they had might be catching. Besides the only thing they said they had to trade with was their tall and possum steaks and they didn't look any too tasty to me.

March 12, 976-Hoo-boy, if you guys think the Injuna were weird poop, you ain't seen nothing yet. When I told them I was trying to get back home, some of them told me to keep up the Kulushatchy, hand a left as near as I could make out, Okeechobee means big bad swaller at Lake Okeechobee and go on out the St. Lucie Canal. Either that or I could go the scenic route down the North New River Canal through Fort Lauderdale and Miami.

Well, I fell asleep and didn't realize how long I slept so when I woke up and couldn't see land anywhere, I naturally assumed we'd already gone through all the Cross-Florida route and we were back on the Atlantic.

That sounded pretty good and I thought we'd reached home when we sighted land in the east. I knew there was something wrong with the idea of all that sawgrass swales there had been a lot planned in the fjord since I'd left but I really got the message when men along the shore started heaving green guavas at us and yelling to veer off, that we were scaring the fish.

This particular band of Injuna, when they weren't heaving green guavas and fishing, were pretty well known for growing the biggest vegetables, this side of Iceland and playing their own suicidal game called football.

These people weren't ready to be discovered yet either. Matter of fact, their chief was sitting crosslegged under a custard apple tree singing, "Ooommmmmmm; ooommmmmmm; to himself."

Th-th-th ch-ch-ch-ch-ch, one guy calling himself T-t-t-t Mmmmmmm-Mills (sounded sorta like a peculiar name to me too) "has already hiff-found himself a-a-a and h-b-he don't n-n-nn-need n-n-no one to j-j-j-j f-f-f-for him."

April 1, 976-An unusual thing happened today. Seems that for some time, a woman who had foretold an earthquake somewhere down south had been predicting a tidal wave which would sweep over this whole peninsula which I have been told is called Flard and all these Flard fools believed it.

Would a believe there was a tidal wave this morning. Rolled right down a path to the coast called, for some strange reason, Killer Highway 80.

The weirdest thing though, was that there were four long-haired freaks riding the 40-foot crest of that wave on what appeared to be oversized skateboards without wheels, yelling something like "Hang Ten."

Mmmmmmm-Mills said this was a way of life for these characters and he understands they've been waiting for the wave ever since the seers said it was coming, but nobody else believed her.

They figured that was the biggest April Fool's joke they've heard of lately. Probably won't be another tidal wave around here for another thousand years.

This was the end of the fragment of the rune stones dealing with Lirpa Loof's adventures in the Glades area. In other fragments of the chronicle, he goes into how he and his crew were lost in a series of convoluted mazes on the east coast of Flard and how his entire crew were mugged in a place north of Flard called Nyark, where they were also strangled to death by what could have only been smog.

This was all before he was picked up from a broken ear by a Viking ship captained by a young captain called Leif Erickson...and before he earned the name of Lirpa the Liar.

Pot Likker

by R-D Santee

A Dr. Elmer C. Cragstraddle recently passed through town. He and I met at the local pub, quite by accident. The wisdom he imparted to me during the brief time we conversed has vast importance. Therefore I will relay his opinions on to you.

The gist of the conversation really came into play when a customer inquired of the barmaid if Red Dye Number So-and-So had been used in the marischino cherries.

The good doctor, overhearing this inquiry, muttered disgustingly "ridiculous, utterly ridiculous."

"It's obvious," I replied "that that person has heard of Red Dye Number So-and-So causes cancer."

"Yes that does appear to be the basis of the problem," the doctor answered. "But, have you ever thought of what other items in our daily life have similar repercussions on our health?"

"No," I answered. "Well, be sure not to breathe. The air is full of organisms that may do damage to your body. Don't eat eggs because of cholesterol, don't eat fish because of mercury, don't use sugar, that's bad, but don't use cyclamates because they're dangerous also. Liquor will give you cirrhosis of the liver, pork will give you trichinosis, preservatives in anything from meat to potato chips are bad for you. Vegetables have traces of DDT, candy rots your teeth, coffee is a stimulant to be shunned, milk may be full of Strontium 90, water is unsafe to drink coming from the lead pipe water system and otherwise because of pollution and your spray can of underarm deodorant is breaking up the ozone layer."

I was reeling from this verbal onslaught. "Who says all this?" I asked.

"Oh, various and sundry departments of the government and private ecological organizations."

"What is safe?" I asked.

"Nothing."

"Nothing?"

"No. Any-food ingested has certain properties that sustain life and some elements of a disruptive nature, but if they keep on with this foolishness the world will starve to death for fear of eating something that may be harmful." He paused, thinking. "You see, these people seem to be operating under the absolutely invalid notion that we are immortal if we just don't do anything. But they're wrong. I once knew a man that felt as long as he never left his home, stayed in the filtered air of his air conditioning, at ate only health foods and never touched a drop of liquor he'd live forever."

"And how long has he subsisted with this program?" I asked.

"Oh. About three weeks. He was doing real well but he was killed by a ten wheel dump truck."

"How could that be?" I inquired incredulously.

"Hit his house," he replied.

"He was run over by a ten wheel dump truck in his own home?"

The very second he saw that huge hole in the side of his home and all that nasty air from the outside rushing in and caught sight of the hamburger stand across the street, he had a heart attack and died."

"What are you telling me?" I asked.

"I'm telling you that people have been dying from one thing or another for years. The ancient Egyptians didn't have Red Dye Number So-and-So but you don't see any around do you? The Greeks of Aristotle's time didn't have spray cans for their underarms but you don't see them around either, the Romans didn't wash their togas in a laundry product that was full of phosphate but where are they? Gone. I'll tell you, modern man has more ways of killing himself than those people ever had but his life span is twenty years longer. So why all the fuss. If I had my way I'd tell these people in Washington and elsewhere to shut up and let me go my own pace. Let me die content in the knowledge that it might have been that last porkchop that did it...but it sure was good."

I motioned to the bartender.

"How about another shot or cirrhosis inducer doctor, then I really must go home and increase my cholesterol level."

Death & taxes

Death and taxes, they say, are the only things we can be sure about in this life and sometimes it seems taxes will be the death of us.

A lot has been said over the past year about how 1976 was going to be a "no new taxes year" when the state legislature meets in Tallahassee beginning next week but those promises are already being overshadowed by calls for new taxes.

Both Tom Lewis and Phil Lewis of the Palm Beach County delegation have already come out with statements they don't think new taxes will fly but other legislators like House Education Chairman Richard Hodges of Tampa and House Speaker Don Tucker are making noises about taxes.

And what do they want to tax? Liquor and cigarettes...what else?

Tom Lewis probably called it right when he said he didn't believe the other legislators would go along with more taxes on liquor and cigarettes, that they were already taxed to death.

Granted, cigarettes and liquor are luxuries and in some people's eyes, it might be a good idea to pile on the taxes to make people stop smoking and drinking but we never heard that it's supposed to be a function of taxes to uphold morals and good health practices.

On the other hand, we can't think of any other reason to keep stacking taxes on the same two items year after year.

Let's face it, there is nothing else taxed quite as heavily as smokes and drinks. As a matter of fact, there are probably few people who realize just how heavily they are taxed.

The taxes on 90 proof spirits, for instance, comes to $13.09 per gallon. Consider that. A recent liquor advertisement was hawking 90 proof gin at $3.99 a quart. By the time sales tax is added on, the price comes to $4.15.

So of the $4.15, how much does a customer pay for the gin? The bottle of gin itself costs him a paltry 69 cents. The other $3.46 he forks over is going directly to Tallahassee and Washington D.C. Baitfish gin is probably more expensive to make.

A carton of cigarettes can be bought in Belle Glade for as little as $4.39...plus another 18 cents for Tallahassee in sales tax of course, making the total price $4.57.

The smoker can take comfort in the fact he's helping build schools or accomplish some other worthwhile tax-paid project like support the local welfare line because that $4.57, $2.68 is going to pay state and federal taxes.

Somewhere we're going to find a point of diminishing returns and it could be the next tax levy. There are already a number of schemes to import cigarettes from the Carolinas without paying Florida taxes and large scale bootlegging could be the next step.

There's gotta be a better way.

Letters to the editor

Dear Sir:
I request you publish my letter.

The Estonian, Latvian, and Lithuanian organizations in Western Europe and the United States received recently a memorandum, dated September, 1975, by the underground organizations in Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania-the Estonian National Front, the Latvian ethnic peoples' right of self-determination, the Committee of the Latvian Christian Youth, and the Lithuanian National Democratic Movement.

Those underground organizations of the Baltic States appeal to all countries, organizations, and associations, which believe in freedom and human dignity, to refrain from making any compromises with the Soviet Union at the expense of the Baltic peoples' right of self-determination.

Since almost all former colonial peoples of Africa and Asia have obtained their independence, the colonialism of the Soviet Union in the once-independent Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania should be condemned by the governments of all free countries.

Sincerely yours,
Dr. Alexander V. Berkis

Social Chatter

Bishop H. N. Robinson called a workshop meeting in Ocala Saturday for all delegates that are elected to go to the General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church to be held in Atlanta, Ga. in June.

Final plans were discussed and adopted. Information kits were given to all delegates. Mrs. M. G. Poole was elected in the Eleventh Episcopal annual South Florida Conference and Presiding Elder, Diocese of West Palm Beach was elected as leader of the Florida delegation. The general conference will last for two weeks.

Donald Mann of South Bay informed me that he was home for Spring Break from college and shall be returning the end of the week.

The women of the Mt. Zion Church, Rev. Charles Robinson pastor, sponsored a shirt and tie tea Sunday at the Church annex. The program was a success both spiritually and financially.

If you didn't attend the banquet Saturday, which was sponsored by Wee Care, Inc. at the Lake Shore Junior High School cafeteria, you really missed something and especially the food. The cooks really put it on.

The St. John First Baptist Church Junior Women's Missionary Society represented their respective churches at the Progressive Missionary and Educational Baptist State Convention of Florida Mar. 25-26 in Orlando.

Mrs. Vivian Byrd, president of the society, said every session of the convention was spiritual, inspiring and "most educational."

Mrs. Byrd said Christian leadership is important to each church, giving and supporting the church tithes and offerings. She said the key to the Christian view of leadership is fellowship, servanthip and leadership. Other ladies attending the convention were Mrs. Betty Lawson, vice president, and Mrs. Betty Evans, recording secretary. The pastor of the church is the Rev. J. B. Adams.

Weed killing set up

Farmers in the Glades area are readying for the Spring assault on Napiergrass begun two years ago with the Florida Sugar Cane League acting as a coordinating agency.

"The eventual goal," according to a letter to local sugar and vegetable growers from FSCU Director of Agricultural Research Joseph Orensigo, "of eliminating napiergrass from sugarcane, public and municipal lands was to be approached by good housekeeping in crop fields and by a determined attack on napiergrass in fencerows, ditchbanks, rights-of-way, roadsides—water—places and other non-crop areas which serve as a source of infestation for continued spread to non-crop and cultivated areas alike."

Napiergrass, known by many as maidencane, is common throughout the Glades, growing in tall clumps in all the places mentioned by Dr. Orensigo.

"The program was and is cooperative," Orensigo said, "in that it enlists the joint efforts of agriculturalists, public utilities, transportation agencies, drainage districts and municipalities for common benefit."

"Some public benefits," he said, "include improved visual aesthetics, less harborage for rodents, reduced fire hazard and lowered expense in maintenance."

Dr. Orensigo said the success of the program depends on neighbors doing their share toward suppression and eradication of the weed. He said "marked improvement" in napiergrass control has been noted throughout the year but efforts should be extended to land contiguous to the "control."

Orensigo said frost during the winter killed some of the grass above ground but did little toward control. He said the control should be the object of planning now which will include the use of both mechanical equipment and chemicals.

"Springtime brings with it increasing temperatures, day length, and rainfall which stimulates plants, giving favorable conditions for napiergrass control programs."

"Now is the time to plan and initiate operations to ensure success regardless of the control method used," he said.

Orensigo said he would be glad to answer questions about the napiergrass program and control procedures.

Puppets to come

Once again it is time to celebrate National Library Week which will be the week of April 4-10 this year. Activities have been planned at your Belle Glade Municipal Library. Special bookmarks will be given, and many displays are on exhibit. Currently featured are a miniature Colonial Kitchen and historic flags made by the students of Gove Elementary School. We also have a group of green leprechauns, courtesy of the first graders of St. Peter's Lutheran School. On Wednesday evening at 7:30, the movie, "Evening of the Glades" will be shown. This should be of particular interest to residents of this area. Come and enjoy your library!

Give and take

Belle Glade March of Dimes Walkathon coordinator James Huggins said Tuesday the March has already received $7,297.50 at the collection party held Saturday for the walkers and at the country music festival held at the marina the day following the walkathon on Mar. 20. But it wasn't all give and no take for the walkers at the collection party Saturday. Trophies were given to the three walkers earning the most money and ribbons were awarded for special categories. Bringing in the

Metal collection set

April's schedule for Reynolds mobile aluminum recycling unit calls for five stops in Belle Glade, where citizens continue to receive 15 cents per pound for aluminum cans and other clean household aluminum. Certain other types of clean aluminum items may be redeemed at a lower price.

Every Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. the unit will purchase aluminum from the public at City Park, 500 West Canal Street.

Belle Glade populace rounded up 261,220 aluminum cans and 2,000 pieces of 11,704.30 by Reynolds last month for their recycling efforts.

Paul Hayden, Reynolds Regional Recycling Manager, explained that aluminum is valuable in comparison with other metals that are found in solid waste from a given community.

Student graduates

A Belle Glade student was one of 208 students at Emory University to graduate at the end of the winter quarter according to President Sanford S. Akwood.

Raymond Richard Roth Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Roth of 904 N.E. Third St. in Belle Glade will be one of students graduating at this time who will receive their degrees during the regular June commencement ceremonies.

Tom Lewistells of priorities for 1976 legislature

Legislation on education and prisons, which could affect people in the Glades directly or indirectly will be given top priority in Tallahassee by the legislature this year according to State Representative Tom Lewis.

Lewis, in Belle Glade to confer with constituents on one of his regular visits, gave a preview of what the legislature can be expected to do during the coming session which starts next week.

He recognized a resolution drawn up by the Belle Glade Lions Club which calls for high school seniors to satisfy certain standard requirements before being allowed to graduate.

He said there are already two bills before the legislature the subject, one on literacy and one on completion.

"They would require tests to be administered before a student graduates," Lewis said, "but I don't think they go far enough." Lewis said students' performance should be checked on a regular basis from the first through the 12th grades. "I think," he said, "the days of social promotions are numbered."

The representative also discussed prisons, saying the legislature would have to satisfy a recent court decision in Jacksonville which requires the state to build more prison space or to discharge prisoners.

Florida is third in the United States in incarceration," Lewis said, "and we're going to have to do something." He said the legislature will have to come up with approximately $8.5 million more than expected to speed up the state prison building program.

This would be in addition to $18 million already allocated to build temporary and permanent prison facilities.

"I don't think the federal government should be telling us how to run state prisons," Lewis said, but added later the state must come up with some way to get rid of the "tent cities" now being used in some places.

The representative said he had no idea, however, where the money was to come from to pay for the educational and penal programs. He said he didn't believe the legislature is going to pass any new taxes this year.

Although a number of Lewis' fellow legislators have already said this will be a "no new tax year," Gov. Reubin Askew has been pushing a 2.75 cents per gallon increase in gasoline taxes and some of the legislators have said they would back plans to tack on additional 34 per cent increase in liquor taxes and another three cents per pack tax in cigarettes.

"I don't believe they're going to fly," Lewis said Friday. "I think cigarettes and liquor have been taxed to death and I believe the other legislators feel the same way I do."

Concerning Askew's proposed road tax, Lewis said he doubted that would pass too. "There is no way I could support an increase in gasoline taxes," he said, "unless the taxes raised in Palm Beach County were to be spent in Palm Beach County."

He said he believes the gasoline taxes too often are gathered into a common pool and he didn't believe that was fair to the people being taxed.

"Maybe we can make better use of the taxes we have," he said. "I think the man in the street is tired of paying for things he isn't getting."

While in Belle Glade, Lewis fielded one complaint from Pahokee farmer Robert Simonsen, who said he was concerned over reports he had received that state universities are now giving credit to students for learning how to become organizers for Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union. Lewis said he was unaware of the problem but would look into it.

When asked if he thought the legislature would be passing any new legislation affecting agri-business interests, Lewis replied, "I think agri-business already has about as much legislation as they can stand."

In another area, Lewis said he is confident a bill he is introducing which would give Florida Highway Patrolmen a right to participate in salary incentive program for educational work will pass.

He said he had been told by Cpl. Kenneth Buckner, who works out of the FHP office in Pahokee, that troopers aren't now permitted to participate in the program.

The 1976 legislature enacted the Department of Criminal Law Enforcement Act which allows law enforcement officers to receive salary incentives for educational work completed in the area of law enforcement and related fields.

"Many times," Lewis said, "the local law enforcement officer will be going to school and still be paid by the employing town, city, village or county then when the course or courses are completed the law enforcement officer will receive an increase in salary."

Members of the Florida Highway Patrol are not included in the act," Lewis said, "and, frankly, I think that they should be."

Lewis lists phone no.

Again, this year, area residents will be able to contact Rep. Tom Lewis (B-North Palm Beach) by phone during the Legislative Session in Tallahassee.

"Each Session," said Lewis, "I have left my phone on the answering service while I was in Tallahassee. This is done so that local residents may call and leave their name and number, if they wish to contact me."

"If anyone wants to contact me after March 30, 1976 until the Session ends on June 4th, all they have to do is dial 844-6524 and leave their name and number," said the North Palm Beach legislator. "My aide or myself call the answering service at least twice a day from Tallahassee to check the messages."

"In case someone does want to call me," said the North Palm Beach legislator, "that number is 804-686-2047. Lewis said, "anyone can call that number to get information on legislation."

Award winner

M. M. (Mac) Bowles has a reason to smile. Bowles' Independent Life Insurance Co. Belle Glade district is the highest-scoring district in the Southeastern United States, he found out recently. Bowles said his district had compiled more than 201 points on the company's scoring system, beating out the next-best competition in Aiken, S.C. by whopping 48 points for this first quarter in 1976. In appreciation, Bowles said the company will present a trophy to the winners and a banquet will be thrown for the staff.

Wine and cheese party held

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wood (above right) were among the 300 guests Saturday night at the fourth annual wine and cheese party held to benefit the Heart Association of Palm Beach County at the Mayaco Lakes Country Club in West Palm Beach. Another couple well-known in the Glades who also were at the party were Congressman and Mrs. Paul Rogers (left). Mrs. Wood has been active for years in the Heart Ball held in Belle Glade.

Langston U. signs three Raiders

Three Glades Central Raiders were awarded full football scholarships this week to play and study at Langston University in Oklahoma and Coach Willie McDonald said the mid-western school is looking at two more members of the 1975-76 Raider team. From left to right are Michael Pringle, Anthony Burger and Johnnie Rutledge, Jr. McDonald is standing behind the players. Pringle was named the Most Valuable Player on the team this year and the defensive and offensive end was also named to the all-area and all-region teams. He is a two-year letterman. Burger, a two-year letterman at tailback and wide receiver, was named to the all-region team, was an honorable mention on the all-area team and was named to the Palm Beach Times Unsung Hero Team. Rutledge is a two-year letterman at quarterback and was an honorable mention on the all-area team. The Langston Lions are members of the Oklahoma Collegiate Athletic Conference and National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. McDonald said the three scholarships were made available because a Langston Scout saw films of the Miami Killian game.

They tried but failed. Women's Lib tried to make it to the Little League baseball organization this season when a local 11-year old lass went out for a team and proved herself as adept at playing ball as most boys and better than some, only to be forbidden to play by a vote of seven to three by the Little League coaches. Now before some of you cry out "Discrimination" against the feminine population, which is the first thought to pop up in the majority of our minds, let's look at the male side of the situation. After all, it does seem like all we hear from other media is a put down by men upon women in general in sports, wages, etc.

The first excuse, or idea, that comes up is of course, the difference in physique (or figure) of the two sexes. The boys only have one part to worry about whereas the girls at this age (10-12) are just beginning to develop and most people feel they are too vulnerable to hard ball - in plain words, it's just too dangerous for girls. There are those who mistakenly believe as I did, that the local baseball organization is a branch of the National Little League Association, and therefore is required to allow girls to play. The local Little League (including the Farm League and Pony League) is sponsored by the Jaycees and is a private organization who can make its own rules, although it generally goes by the official Little League rules, I imagine.

Another of the reasons the teams are loaded with boys now, at least one team has 15 boys, and to allow girls into the league would really overcover the teams - and the number of teams can't be expanded to accommodate the girls because I understand there aren't enough coaches to fill the positions now.

And last but not least, many men argue (and rightly so) that girls aren't coordinated enough at this age to play hard ball - well, not all girls as is proven in the case of this young female who wanted to join the team. And there are several others like her, but I have to agree with them on this point, most girls aren't very coordinated when it comes to sports.

That brings it to another point. The only reason the females aren't adept as boys with this game is because they haven't had as much opportunity to get the experience playing ball as the boys. After all, how many mothers get out with their daughters to play catch? Many members of the older generation still feel it is unfeminine to be athletic and some of it has carried into this generation, but fortunately the majority are entering into some kind of sport as a form of exercise whether it be softball, basketball, track, tennis or others.

Unfortunately, Belle Glade is far behind the times when it comes to organized sports for girls. The schools have just now gotten a strong female athletic program going but outside of that there's nothing for them to do, which is the main reason I would like to get an athletic program started for the girls with a softball league.

Right now the women's summer softball league is struggling along with only about five teams with enthusiasm waning as the older ones drop out and not enough younger girls are joining the league, either for lack of interest or because they just don't know much about the league.

But is we could get a girls' softball league going (and the men are 100 per cent behind the idea) it would give the females a chance to prove their agility and adeptness at outdoor sports plus give them something to do. I understand there are quite a few girls who want to play baseball, but since that's ruled out, won't softball do just as well? It'll be more competition at the same level and not half as dangerous.

So how about it girls (and mothers too, I can always use the assistance) - wanna play some ball? If you do, how about giving me a call and let me have your name and phone number so we can set up a meeting and maybe get a couple of teams together for a beginning.

Remember, nothing can be done unless you show an interest, and if you're interested, just call me at 996-3612.

Pearce scores well

The first amateur winner of the Insurance Youth Classic, Eddie Pearce, has joined the ranks of top-rated golf professionals. Since he turned professional in 1972, he has amassed over $150,000 in winnings. Thus far, in 1976, Eddie has earned over $53,000.

Track records fall as Glades girls win meet

The Glades Central Girls' Track Team ran roughshod over teams from Cardinal Newman and Atlantic High Monday as the girls broke three school records and picked up ten first place awards for the three-way meet on the coast.

Glades Central picked up a total of 95 points for the day while Newman's team made 50 points and Atlantic trailed with 36 points.

Records were broken by Levetta Nelson as she won the mile run in 6 minutes, 36.7 seconds and Rosa Wilkinson in the 440 yard dash with a first place win of 63.3 seconds and by the mile relay team who set a record but still came in second. In other wins, Kathleen Ford came in first place in the 100 yard dash in 11 seconds and the shotput. Vernita Anderson won second place in the shotput and Terry Osborne came in fourth.

Osborne also picked up another first place win in the long jump, and Alma Rolle won first place in the high jump, with Kathleen Ford, Linda James and Lola Pringle coming in two, three and four.

The discus throw, Glenda Dixon won first place while second and third place awards were picked up by Janice Johnson and Marilyn Simkins.

The team of Alice Ford, Alma Rolle, Terry Osborne and Kathleen Ford won the 440 and 880 relay races with times of 2:04 and 1:51.

Coach Jay Seider said Kathleen Ford came in more than 50 yards ahead of number two girl as she crossed the finish line in the 440 yard event.

The Glades Central girls also won first place in the 880 yard medley as Terry Osborne, Tricia Jones, Anita Anderson and Glenda Dixon covered the ground in 2:02.8.

The team of Janice Johnson, Yvette Nelson, Carey Hodges and Rosa Wilkerson came in second place in the mile relay with a time of 4:38, beating the old school record by eight tenths of a second.

Other points were picked up when Nina Preev picked up a fourth place in the 880 yard run and Belinda Gaines came in fourth in the 220 yard dash.

Seider said the girls will face a test in Boca Raton today when they are matched up against 12 other teams in a South County tournament.

He said the girls haven't had any real competition so far this year and they haven't been pushed to do their best in several events.

Sugar

Sugar market sentiment has been fueled by news that the USSR bought 200,000 tons of Philippine sugar and 800,000 tons from Western European countries, with another purchase of 200,000 tons from the Philippines talked of for later this year. In addition, China is regarded as a potential bio buyer of sugar. These developments in conjunction with a "holding movement" by some large producers of cane sugar, suggest price strength as buyers replenish stocks seasonally.

Corn

An unfavorable turn in the export trend, and international currency disturbances, influenced a reaction in corn early in the week but prices rallied later on re-appearance of foreign buying interest.

Inspections for corn in the week ended March 12 dropped to 26 million bushels, or 4.2 million bushels below the preceding week, and was also 1.3 million bushels, less than in the corresponding week of 1975. Nevertheless, the cumulative export movement remains exceptionally large. Cumulative inspections for the season to date of 784 million bushels compare with 550 million bushels in the similar period of the preceding season.

The decline in the value of the French Franc and some of the other European currencies was considered detrimental to exports of corn and other American commodities since it would raise prices in terms of the depreciated money. However, this could be readily offset by other considerations, especially any heavy new buying on the part of the USSR.

There is some concern over repercussions from farmer holding movements. While prices are helped when farmers hold back, the net result could be a build-up of deferred sales which could hit the market at a later date. This could be a more important factor if the new crop appears to be getting off to a good start.

The latest Agriculture Department weekly weather report stated that, although land preparations remain generally ahead of normal, plowing was slowed in the Corn Belt and late Southeast by rains in the preceding week. On balance, the expectations still are for a large crop, barring abnormally bad growing conditions.

We expect prices to be fairly steady within a trading range, until new crop prospects can be better evaluated.

Cattle

The USDA's 7 place cattle on feed report disclosed larger than expected placements during February relative to a year ago. However, the net change from January was not significant and this consideration may have helped temper some of the selling pressure. Placements last month of 1.4 million head were 74 per cent higher than in February 1975, but only slightly higher than in January. This suggests that fed cattle supplies later this year might not be burdensome, especially if consumer disposable income continues to increase with attendant improvement in beef demand. Until the near-term supply picture clears, prices may tend to display a downward bias, but we continue to view the longer term statistical outlook as constructive for cattle futures prices.

FARM FRONT

by Doyle Conner, Commissioner

Farmers preparing to plant their field crops this spring might want to investigate no-tillage practices, which are replacing conventional plowing of the soil. Many farmers who have adopted no-till or minimum tillage farming practices swear by it. The U.S. Department of Agriculture predicts farmers in the future will use conventional methods on only about five per cent of the cropland.

The shift to no-till methods of farming came with the pinch of chronic labor shortages shortly after World War II as a means of saving time in getting a crop into the ground. In no-till farming, new crops are planted in narrow strips of soil cut open by a coulters blade or chisel-type plow and the narrow seedbed then compacted by the planter's wheels.

Nowadays, farmers will typically plant a winter cover crop after the fall harvest. This is usually rye. In the spring, the cover crop is killed with a herbicide and the main crop is planted in the rye residue with a special no-till planter. This means that there is no erosion of the soil and the crop residue builds valuable humus in the soil. The humus increases the water-holding capacity of the soil. After planting the crop, the farmer does not have to make another pass over the field until harvest time unless a pesticide application is needed. This is a fuel-saving feature of no-till farming. Following the harvest, he begins the cycle anew by reseeding a cover crop.

Flowless farming is now employed on more than six million acres in the United States and is expanding rapidly. It is not, however, without problems. Insects once held in check by deep plowing tend to thrive in undisturbed soil and much from the crop residue and proper treatment with pesticides is a must. Precise timing is needed in applying the herbicides to establish enough mulch to check erosion, yet not smother the seedlings.

Minimum tillage, involving only planting and harvesting passes by the farm equipment, means less compaction of the soil and savings of time, fuel and labor which all cost money.

Long-term benefits from soil conservation also are an important factor. It's an idea which merits much study in the years ahead.

In a world where order depends heavily on regulation, we have learned to rely on signs for direction. Sometimes, however, the signs seem to point in completely opposite ways.

How often we have heard a political candidate point out for us his way, all the while assuring us it is the only way. His opponent, meanwhile, diligently attempts to convince us that success lies in the opposite direction. The most obvious factor is that they may both be right in some degree. Before we can make a choice, we must consider the signs and utilize them in reaching our conclusion.

The decision we make when we cast our vote is vital to our future. Let us examine the issues with great care. Exercise our best judgment. And most important of all, let's be sure we follow one sign without fail - the sign that says "VOTE."
